Madison Labby and Sarah Ryan (“Plaintiffs”), on behalf of themselves and on behalf of all others similarly situated, bring this Class and Collective Action Complaint against Defendants Legal Sea Foods Restaurant Group, Inc. and LSWF, LLC (“Defendants”), and hereby state as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. This case implicates Defendants’ violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act’s (“FLSA”) tip credit and subsequent underpayment of their employees at the federally mandated minimum wage rate, as well as violations of the Massachusetts Minimum Fair Wages Law (“MFWL”), M.G.L. c. 151 §§ 1, 7, for Defendants’ failure to pay Plaintiffs and all similarly situated workers their earned minimum wages. Plaintiffs bring this case as a collective action under the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) and as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 for the Massachusetts claims.

2. Defendants pay their tipped employees, including servers and bartenders, below the minimum wage rate by taking advantage of the tip-credit provisions of the FLSA and, in Massachusetts, the MFWL. Under the tip-credit provisions, an employer may under certain circumstances, pay those tipped employees less than the minimum wage rate by taking a “tip credit” against the employer’s minimum wage obligations from the tips received from customers.

3. However, there are strict requirements for an employer to utilize the “tip credit.” See 29 U.S.C. § 203(m). An employer must advise an employee in advance of its use of the tip credit pursuant to the provisions of Section 3(m) of the FLSA. See id. (stating that the tip credit provision “shall not apply with respect to any tipped employee unless such employee has been informed by the employer of the provisions of this subsection.”). That is, the employer must inform the employee of each requirement under section 203(m), including: (1) of the amount of the cash wage that is to be paid to the tipped employee; (2) of the amount by which the wages of the tipped employee are increased on account of the tip credit; (3) that all tips received by the employee must be retained by the employee except for tips contributed to a valid tip pool; and (4) that the tip credit shall not apply to any employee who does not receive the notice.

4. Similarly, under the MFWL (and its implementing regulations), employers may only pay tipped employees below the minimum wage rate in Massachusetts if the employer: (1) notifies tipped employees, in writing, of the provisions of M.G.L. c 151 § 7, paragraph three; and if it utilizes a tip pool (as Defendants do) (b) distribute tips through a tip pool to any individuals who are considered a wait staff employee, service employee, or service bartender; (c) distribute tips through a tip pool to individuals who do not have managerial responsibility; and (d) distribute tips through a tip pool in proportion to the service provided by tipped employees. See 454 Mass. Code Regs. 27.03(2)(b); M.G.L. c 149 § 152A. Under Massachusetts law, if an employer does not comply with these requirements, the employer cannot take advantage of the tip credit to meet its minimum wage obligations under M.G.L. c 151§ 7.

5. Further, it is illegal for employers to require tipped employees to give up a portion of their tips to their employer or to ineligible employees, such as management or staff who do not customarily and regularly receive tips. See Acosta v. Osaka Japan Restaurant, Inc., No. CV 17-1018, 2018 WL 3397337, at *7-8 (E.D. Pa. July 12, 2018) (holding the FLSA “does not allow employers to force tipped employees to redistribute their tips to employees who do not receive tips (and who are therefore required to be paid the full minimum wage).” (citing 29 C.F.R. § 531.54; Shahriar v. Smith & Wollensky Restaurant Grp., 659 F.3d 234, 240 (2d Cir. 2011); Myers v. Copper Cellar Corp., 192 F.3d 546, 551 (6th Cir. 1999); Roussell v. Brinker Int'l, Inc., 441 Fed. Appx. 222, 231 (5th Cir. 2011)); see also Portales v. MBA Inv. Co., LLC, No. 3:13CV00001, 2014 WL 5795206, at *3 (N.D. Ohio Oct. 16, 2014) (“When an employer includes a non-customarily tipped employee or another employer in a mandatory tip pool, the tip pool is invalid under the FLSA.” (citing 29 U.S.C. § 203)); Bernal v. Bankar Enter., Inc., 579 F. Supp. 2d 804, 810 (W.D. Tex. 2008) (employer not permitted to take the FLSA tip credit when it required waiters to pay for shortages and unpaid tabs).

6. Additionally, an employer must pay the minimum statutory hourly rate under the FLSA and pursuant to M.G.L. c 151 § 7). See 29 U.S.C. § 203(m); M.G.L. c 151 § 7. The FLSA requires that employers comply with any State law that establishes a higher minimum wage than that established by the FLSA. See 29 U.S.C. § 218(a).

7. Moreover, an employer cannot pay below the minimum wage to tipped employees and require those tipped employees to perform non-tipped work that is unrelated to the tipped occupation. See 29 C.F.R. § 531.56(e); see also Romero v. Top-Tier Colorado LLC, 849 F.3d 1281, 1285 (10th Cir. 2017); Driver v. AppleIllinois, LLC, 739 F.3d 1073, 1075 (7th Cir. 2014) (explaining that when tipped employees perform “non-tipped duties” that “are unrelated to their tipped duties . . . such as, in the case of restaurant servers, washing dishes, preparing food, mopping the floor, or cleaning bathrooms, they are entitled to the full minimum wage for the time they spend at that work.”); Osman v. Grube, Inc., No. 16-CV-802, 2017 WL 2908864, at *4 (N.D. Ohio July 7, 2017) (employer may not take a tip credit for the time that a tipped employee spends on work that is not related to the tipped occupation).

8. Finally, an employer cannot require its tipped employees to perform non-tipped work that is related to the employees’ tipped occupation but exceeds 20% of the employees’ time worked or for more than 30 consecutive minutes. 29 C.F.R. § 531.56(f); see Marsh v. J. Alexander’s, LLC, 905 F.3d 610, 626-28 (9th Cir. 2018) (adopting 20% standard for dual jobs regulation and finding the DOL’s opinion on dual jobs for tipped workers to be entitled to deference); Fast v. Applebee’s Intern., Inc., 638 F.3d 872, 881 (8th Cir. 2011) (granting deference to the DOL’s 20% standard); Driver v. AppleIllinois, LLC, No. 06 Civ. 6149, 2012 WL 3716482, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 27, 2012) (“An employer may take a tip credit only for hours worked by [an] employee in an occupation in which [he] qualifies as a tipped employee.”); Driver v. AppleIllinois, LLC, 739 F.3d 1073, 1075 (7th Cir. 2014) (the court indirectly case its imprimatur on the DOL’s aforementioned dual-jobs regulation and Field Operations Handbook, citing both the “related to” standard in 29 C.F.R. § 531.56(e) and the 20% standard in § 30d00(e)); Flood v. Carlson Restaurants, Inc., No. 13 Civ. 6458 (AT), 2015 WL 1396257 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 27, 2015) (denying Defendants’ motion to dismiss, explaining that the 20% standard is a reasonable interpretation of the FLSA and ultimately granting 216(b) notice); Ide v. Neighborhood Restaurant Partners, LLC, No. 13 Civ. 509 (MHC), 2015 WL 11899143, at *6 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 26, 2015) (“a reasonable interpretation of § 531.56(e) is that [Plaintiffs] would be entitled to minimum wage if she spends more than twenty percent of her time performing related but non-tipped duties.”); Crate v. Q’s Restaurant Group, LLC, 2014 WL 10556347, at *4 (M.D. Fla. May 2, 2014) (“[T]he Court concludes that the 20% rule clarifies the ambiguity contained in 29 C.F.R. § 531.56(e) by delineating how much time a tipped employee can engage in related, non-tipped producing activity before such time must be compensated directly by the employer at the full minimum wage rate.”).

9. Defendants violated the FLSA and Massachusetts law in the following respects:

- a. Violation for failure to inform: Defendants failed to correctly inform Plaintiffs of the desire to rely on the tip credit to meet their minimum wage obligations under both the FLSA and Massachusetts law. Defendants’ violations include, but are not limited to, the following: (1) failing to inform the Plaintiffs of the amount of the cash wage that is to be paid to the tipped employee; (2) failing to inform Plaintiffs of the amount by which the wages of the tipped employee are increased on account of the tip credit; (3) failing to inform Plaintiffs that all tips received by the employee must be retained by the employee except for tips contributed to a valid tip pool; (4) failing to inform Plaintiffs that the hourly rate paid cannot drop below the minimum tipped wage, and (5) failing to inform Plaintiffs that the tip credit shall not apply to any employee who does not receive the notice.
- b. Violation for making illegal deductions that reduced Plaintiffs’ direct wage below the minimum required hourly wage for tipped employees: Plaintiffs were required to purchase certain clothing to work for Defendants, which reduced their wages below the minimum hourly wage required for tipped employees.
- c. Violation for performing work unrelated to tipped occupation: Plaintiffs were required to perform improper types, and excessive amounts, of non-tipped work, including but not limited to cleaning dishes, polishing silverware, cleaning bathrooms, polishing metal surfaces, removing mold, deep cleaning the restaurant, wiping hand sanitizer on all surfaces, and mopping floors.
- d. Violation for performing non-tipped side work in excess of 20% of the time spent working in the week or for more than 30 consecutive minutes: Plaintiffs were required to perform greater than 20% of their time in performing non-tip producing side work, including but not limited to rolling silverware, filling condiments, making tea and coffee, cleaning the server station, and cleaning tables.

10. As a result of these violations, Defendants have lost the ability to use the tip credit and therefore must compensate Plaintiffs and all similarly situated worked at the full minimum wage rate, unencumbered by the tip credit, and for all hours worked. In other words, Defendants must account for the difference between the wages paid to Plaintiffs and all similarly situated workers and the minimum wage rate.

II. SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION AND VENUE

11. This Court has federal question jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 as this case is brought under the laws of the United States, specifically the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. § 201, et seq. The Court has supplemental jurisdiction over the state-law claims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1337.

12. Venue is proper in this judicial district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331(b) because a substantial part of the events and omissions giving rise to these claims occurred in this District, including many of the wrongs herein alleged.

III. PARTIES AND PERSONAL JURISDICTION

13. Plaintiff Madison Labby is an individual who worked for Defendants at the Legal Sea Foods restaurant in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Plaintiff Labby's written consent to this action is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

14. Plaintiff Sarah Ryan is an individual who worked for Defendants at the Legal Sea Foods restaurant in Burlington, Massachusetts. Plaintiff Ryan's written consent to this action is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

15. The FLSA Class Members are all current and former servers and bartenders who worked a Legal Sea Foods restaurant for at least one week during the three-year period prior to the filing of this Complaint through final resolution of the Action.

16. The Massachusetts Class Members are all current and former servers and bartenders who worked at a Legal Sea Foods restaurant in Massachusetts for at least one week during the three-year period prior to the filing of this Complaint through final resolution of the Action.

17. The FLSA Class Members and Massachusetts Class Members shall be collectively referred to as "Class Members" unless otherwise indicated herein.

18. Defendant Legal Sea Foods Restaurant Group, Inc. is a corporation that maintains its principal place of business located in Boston, Massachusetts. Legal Sea Foods Restaurant Group, Inc. may be served with process by serving its registered agent: National Registered Agents, Inc., 155 Federal Street, Suite 700, Boston, Massachusetts 02110.

19. Defendant LSWF, LLC (f/k/a Legal Sea Foods, LLC) is a limited liability company that maintains its principal place of business located in Foxboro, Massachusetts. LSWF, LLC may be served with process by serving its registered agent: Corporation Service Company, 84 State Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02210.

20. This Court has personal jurisdiction over this action because Defendants operate in Massachusetts and maintain their principal place of business in Massachusetts. Additionally, at all times relevant to this action, Defendants have had sufficient minimum contacts with Massachusetts to confer personal jurisdiction over Defendants. Defendants conduct business in Massachusetts, contract with and employed Massachusetts residents, had Massachusetts customers, market to residents of Massachusetts, and own property in Massachusetts. Further, the wrongs complained of in this Complaint occurred in Massachusetts.

IV. COVERAGE

21. At all material times, Defendants have been an employer within the meaning of the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. § 203(d).

22. At all material times, Defendants have been an enterprise in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce within the meaning of the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. § 203(s)(1).

23. At all material times, Defendants have enjoyed yearly gross revenue in excess of $500,000.

24. At all material times, Plaintiffs were employees engaged in commerce or the production of goods for commerce.

25. At all material times, Plaintiffs have been employees of Defendants within the meaning of Massachusetts law.

26. At all material times, Defendants have operated as a “single enterprise” within the meaning of 29 U.S.C. § 203(r)(1). That is Defendants perform related activities through unified operation and common control for a common business purpose.

27. Defendants operate a chain of restaurants with the name “Legal Sea Foods” under the control of the same senior level management. Indeed, the restaurants advertise themselves as a unified entity through the same website.

28. Defendants represent themselves to the public as one restaurant operating at multiple locations. They share employees, have a common management, pool their resources, operate from the same headquarters, have common ownership, and have the same operating name.

29. Defendants operate under a unified business model and part of that unified business model is the wage violations alleged in this Complaint.

30. Thus, Defendants formed a “single enterprise” and are liable for the violations of the other.

V. FACTS

31. Defendants own and operate a chain of restaurants under the trade name “Legal Sea Foods.” Defendants currently own and operate these restaurants in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Virginia.

32. Legal Sea Foods restaurants are full-service restaurants that employ tipped workers, including servers and bartenders, to provide service to customers.

33. Defendants employed Plaintiffs and the Class Members as servers and bartenders. Servers gather orders from customers and deliver food and drinks to the customers. Servers are paid an hourly wage by Defendants and receive tips from customers. A bartender prepares and serves drinks to customers. A bartender is likewise paid an hourly wage by Defendants and receives tips from customers.

34. However, Defendants paid these tipped workers less than the minimum wage.

35. Defendants attempted to utilize the tip credit to meet their minimum wage obligations to their tipped employees, including Plaintiffs and the Class Members.

36. Plaintiff Labby worked for Defendants at the Legal Sea Foods restaurant in Cambridge, Massachusetts as a server. She worked for Defendants from approximately July 2019 to December 2019. Plaintiff Labby was paid an hourly wage of approximately $4.36 per hour.

37. Plaintiff Ryan worked for Defendants at the Legal Sea Foods restaurant in Burlington, Massachusetts as both a server and bartender. She worked for Defendants from approximately August 2018 to January 2021. Her hourly rate started at approximately $4.36 per hour and was raised to $4.95 per hour.

38. The tip credit has a harmful effect on workers that threatens the health of the economy. Adasina Social Capital, a company representing investors with more than $538 billion in assets, has issued a letter to large corporations operating restaurants advising of the ills of using the tip credit.¹ The letter states as follows:

Tipped workers are the largest group paid a subminimum wage and represent approximately six million people in the United States. The restaurant industry by far employs the largest number of tipped workers, representing 13.6 million people.

Frozen at $2.13 per hour, a tipped subminimum wage worker can be paid as little as $4,430 per year for full-time work. As a result, in the 42 states that allow payment of a subminimum wage, tipped workers are more than twice as likely to live in poverty, and the rates are even higher for women and people of color. The subminimum wage for tipped workers has risen little since it was enacted following the emancipation of slavery, a time when employer trade associations pushing to recoup the costs of free, exploited labor.²

39. Given the harmful effects of the tip credit, there are strict requirements that must be met by an employer who seeks to utilize the tip credit to meet its minimum wage obligations.

40. In this case, Defendants did not satisfy the strict requirements to use the tip credit. Defendants maintained a policy and practice whereby they failed to properly provide Plaintiffs and the Class Members with the statutorily required notice, including but not limited to: (1) the amount of the cash wage that is to be paid to the tipped employee, (2) the amount by which the wages of the tipped employee are increased on account of the tip credit, (3) that all tips received by the employee must be retained by the employee, (4) that they could not be paid lower than the minimum statutory amount per hour to claim the tip credit, and (5) that the tip credit shall not apply to any employee who does not receive the notice.

41. Defendants also maintained a policy and practice whereby tipped employees were required to perform non-tip producing side work unrelated to the employees' tipped occupation. As a result, Plaintiffs and the Class Members were engaged in dual occupations while being compensated at the tip credit subminimum wage rate.

42. These duties include but are not limited to the following: cleaning dishes, polishing silverware, cleaning bathrooms, polishing metal surfaces, removing mold, deep cleaning the restaurant, wiping hand sanitizer on all surfaces, and mopping floors, amongst other activities that were not related to their tipped occupation.

43. Defendants also maintained a policy and practice whereby tipped employees were required to spend a substantial amount of time throughout a workweek, in excess of 20 percent or for more than 30 consecutive minutes, performing non-tip producing side work related to the employees' tipped occupation.

44. Specifically, Defendants maintained a policy and practice whereby tipped employees were required to spend a substantial amount of time performing non-tip producing side-work, including but not limited to rolling silverware, filling condiments, making tea and coffee, cleaning the server station, and cleaning tables, amongst other activities.

45. Further, Defendants required Plaintiffs and Class Members to perform non-tip producing after the restaurant closed to the public. Indeed, Defendants required Plaintiffs and the Class Members to remain at the restaurant after it closed to the public and when there was no opportunity to earn tips, to perform manual labor cleaning duties. At times, they spent 31 minutes upwards to 2 hours performing after the restaurant was closed performing non-tip producing work.

46. Additionally, at times during their shifts, Plaintiffs and the Class Members spent more than 30 minutes performing non-tip generating side work. Indeed, there were periods of time of 31 minutes to 2 hours in the middle of their shifts when there were no customers and no opportunity to earn tips. During that time period, the Plaintiffs and Class Members simply performed their required side work.

47. However, Defendants did not pay their tipped employees the full minimum wage rate for this work. The duties that Defendants required Plaintiffs and the Class Members to perform were duties that are customarily assigned to “back-of-the-house” employees in other establishments, who typically receive at least the full minimum wage rate.

48. During Plaintiffs’ and the Class Members’ employment, checklists were posted in Defendants’ restaurants with numerous non-tipped duties that tipped employees were required to perform, in addition to serving customers.

49. When the tipped employees performed these non-tipped duties, they usually did not interact with customers and did not have an opportunity to earn tips.

50. Indeed, Defendants did not have a policy prohibiting tipped employees from performing certain types, or excessive amounts, of non-tipped work.

51. Defendants did not track or record all of the time the tipped employees spent performing non-tipped work at the appropriate minimum wage rate, despite having the capability to do so. Defendants’ timekeeping system was capable of tracking multiple job codes for different work assignments, but Defendants failed to track all of the specific tasks for Plaintiffs and the Class Members.

52. Defendants use a point-of-sale (“POS”) system to record hours worked by its tipped employees. Defendants then analyze the information collected by the POS system, including the labor costs at each of the restaurants. Defendants’ timekeeping system was capable of tracking multiple job codes for different work assignments, but Defendants failed to track the specific tasks for Plaintiffs and Class Members.

53. In the POS system, Defendants can create different “clock in” codes that would allow tipped employees to record their time at the full minimum wage when performing non-tipped work.

54. In fact, Defendants allowed the Plaintiffs and Class Members to clock-in at the full minimum wage when they performed work prior to the restaurant opening for business. However, when the restaurant was closed for the evening, Defendants refused to allow the Plaintiffs and Class Members to similarly be paid at the full minimum wage. Likewise, Defendants did not allow the Plaintiffs and Class Members to be paid at the full minimum wage when there were no customers for periods of time greater than 30 minutes.

55. Defendants’ managers at the restaurants were eligible to receive bonuses, in part, based on meeting or exceeding certain labor cost targets, which created an incentive to keep the amount paid to tipped employees low.

56. Moreover, Defendants violated the FLSA and Massachusetts law by not paying the minimum “tipped” hourly rate. Defendants required its tipped employees to pay for items for their “uniform,” such as specific styles of shirts, pants, belts, and specialized shoes. These clothing items were required to perform work for Defendants and were primarily for the benefit and convenience of Defendants. The costs for these items were not reimbursed by Defendants.

57. Because Defendants paid its tipped employees at the subminimum “tip credit” rate, any week in which a tipped employee was required to pay for work-related expenses for Defendants’ business, they were not even paid the minimum statutory hourly rate to claim the tip credit, thereby negating Defendants’ entitlement to the tip credit.

58. In other words, by requiring Plaintiffs and the Class Members to pay for these work-related expenses, their hourly rates of pay were reduced by the amount of these uniform costs. As a result, they were not even paid the minimum hourly rate necessary for Defendants to claim the tip credit.

59. Because Defendants violated the requirements to claim the tip credit, Defendants lost the right to take a credit toward their minimum wage obligation to Plaintiffs and the Class Members.

60. Defendants knew or should have known that their policies or practices violate the law, and Defendants have not made a good faith effort to comply with the FLSA or Massachusetts law. As noted earlier, Defendants knew the requirement to pay the Plaintiffs and Class Members at the full minimum wage when they performed set up duties and side work duties during the opening shift. However, they failed to implement the same policy during the closing shift. Defendants acted knowingly, willfully, and/or with reckless disregard of the law. Defendants carried and continue to carry out the illegal pattern and practice regarding its tipped employees as described in the Complaint.

REVISED FIELD OPERATIONS HANDBOOK AND NEW DUAL JOBS REGULATION

61. On November 8, 2018, the Department of Labor issued opinion letter FLSA 2018-27, which provided a standard for interpreting the dual jobs regulation that was different than the “80/20” rule that had existed at the time. However, nearly every court to have considered that opinion letter held that the opinion letter was not entitled to any deference. See Flores v. HMS Host Corp., No. 8:18-cv-03312-PX, 2019 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 183906 (D. Md. Oct. 23, 2019); Callaway v. DenOne, LLC, No. 1:18-cv-1981, 2019 WL 1090346 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 8, 2019); Cope v. Let's Eat Out, Inc., 354 F. Supp. 3d 976 (W.D. Mo. 2019); Spencer v. Macado's, Inc., 399 F. Supp. 3d 545, 552-53 (W.D. Va. 2019).

62. Therefore, the Department of Labor announced its intention to revise the dual jobs regulation in 29 C.F.R. § 531.56(e) and issued a notice of proposed rule-making on October 8, 2019.³

63. After soliciting comments, the Department of Labor published its final rule on December 20, 2020, which had an effective date of March 1, 2021.⁴ After delaying the effective date of the Final Rule,⁵ on June 21, 2021, the Department of Labor announced “a notice of proposed rulemaking to limit the amount of non-tip producing work that a tipped employee can perform when an employer is taking a tip credit.”⁶

64. After soliciting more comments, the Department of Labor announced on October 28, 2021, the publication of a final rule (Dual Jobs final rule).⁷ The Dual Jobs Final Rule became effective December 28, 2021.⁸

65. Under the Final Rule, an employer cannot take a tip credit for any of the time spent by a tipped worker performing any non-tipped work that exceeds 30 minutes. That is, when a tipped worker performed non-tipped work for a continuous period of time exceeding 30 minutes, the employer cannot claim the tip credit.

66. Here, Defendants illegally required Plaintiffs and the Class Members to perform non-tip producing work for an excessive period of time. That is because Defendants required Plaintiffs and the Class Members to perform non-tipped work 31 minutes to two hours before the restaurants were open to the public, throughout their shifts, and after the restaurants were closed to the public, when the restaurants did not have customers and there was no opportunity to earn tips. During this time, Defendants paid below the minimum wage rate and forced Plaintiffs and the Class Members to perform non-tip producing duties, as noted above.

67. Given that Defendants failed to comply with the requirements to take the tip credit, Defendants have lost the ability to claim the tip credit and owe Plaintiffs and the Class Members pay at the full minimum wage rate per hour for all hours they worked for Defendants.

VI. FLSA § 216(b) COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

68. Plaintiffs bring this action as a collective action pursuant to the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) on behalf of all persons who were or are employed by Defendants as servers and bartenders for at least one week during the three-year period prior to the filing of this Complaint through final resolution of this Action.

69. Plaintiffs have actual knowledge, through personal observation and through conversations with their co-workers, that a collective of similarly situated workers exists who have been subjected to the same policies of Defendants with respect to the payment of the minimum wage.

70. The FLSA Class Members are similarly situated to Plaintiffs in that they share the same duties and were subject to the same violations of the FLSA.

71. Like Plaintiffs, the FLSA Class Members were not given proper notice of the tip credit provisions, performed work that was unrelated to their jobs as tipped employees, and performed a substantial amount of side work for significant periods of time.

72. Moreover, the FLSA Class Members were also subject to deductions and expenses that dropped their compensation below the minimum wage.

73. Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members all labored under the same corporate structure, the same corporate policies, the same corporate chain of command, and pursuant to the rules in the same company handbook.

74. The names and addresses of the FLSA Class Members are available from Defendants' records. To the extent required by law, notice will be provided to these individuals by first class mail, email, text message, by posting a notice in common work/rest areas, or by the use of techniques and a form of notice similar to those customarily used in representative actions.

75. Although the exact amount of damages may vary among the FLSA Class Members in proportion to the number of hours they worked, damages for each individual can be easily calculated using a simple formula.

76. As such, the class of similarly situated FLSA Class Members is properly defined as follows:

All current and former servers and bartenders who worked at a Legal Sea Foods restaurant for at least one week during the three-year period prior to the filing of this Complaint through final resolution of this Action.

VII. RULE 23 CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

77. Plaintiffs bring this action as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 on behalf of the Massachusetts Class Members, which is comprised of the following:

All current and former servers and bartenders who worked at a Legal Sea Foods restaurant operated for at least one week in Massachusetts during the three-year period prior to the filing of this Complaint through final resolution of this Action.

78. Numerosity. The number of members in the Massachusetts Class is believed to exceed forty. This volume makes bringing the claims of each individual member of the Massachusetts Class before this Court impracticable. Likewise, joining each individual member of the Massachusetts Class as a plaintiff in this action is impracticable. Furthermore, the identity of the members of the Massachusetts Class will be determined from Defendants' records, as will the compensation paid to each of them. As such, a class action is a reasonable and practical means of resolving these claims. To require individual actions would prejudice the Massachusetts Class and Defendants.

79. Typicality. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the Massachusetts Class because, like the members of the Massachusetts Class, Plaintiffs were subject to Defendants' uniform policies and practices and were compensated in the same manner as others in the Massachusetts Class. Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class have been uncompensated and/or under-compensated as a result of Defendants' common policies and practices, which failed to comply with Massachusetts law. As such, Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the Massachusetts Class. Plaintiffs and all members of the Massachusetts Class sustained damages arising out of and caused by Defendants' common course of conduct in violation of law as alleged herein.

80. Adequacy. Plaintiffs are representative parties who will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Massachusetts Class because it is in their interest to effectively prosecute the claims herein alleged in order to obtain the unpaid wages and penalties required under Massachusetts law. Plaintiffs have retained attorneys who are competent in both class actions and wage and hour litigation. Plaintiffs do not have any interest which may be contrary to or in conflict with the claims of the Massachusetts Class she seeks to represent.

81. Commonality. Common issues of fact and law predominate over any individual questions in this matter. The common issues of fact include, but are not limited to:

- a. Whether Defendants properly informed Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members of the intent to claim the tip credit;
- b. Whether more than 20% of the work performed by Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members was non-tip generated work;
- c. Whether Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members performed non-tip producing side work for significant periods of time during their shifts and/or after the restaurant was closed for business; and
- d. Whether Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members were subject to unlawful deductions.

82. The common issues of law include, but are not limited to:

- a. Whether Defendants can claim the “tip credit”
- b. Whether Defendants violated the MFWL;
- c. Whether Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class are entitled to compensatory damages;
- d. The proper measure of damages sustained by Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members; and
- e. Whether Defendants’ actions were “willful.”

83. Superiority. A class action is superior to other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of this lawsuit. Even in the event any member of the Massachusetts Class could afford to pursue individual litigation against a company the size of Defendants, doing so would unduly burden the court system. Individual litigation would magnify the delay and expense to all parties and flood the court system with duplicative lawsuits. Prosecution of separate actions by individual members of the Massachusetts Class would create the risk of inconsistent or varying judicial results and establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants.

84. A class action, by contrast, presents far fewer management difficulties and affords the benefits of uniform adjudication of the claims, financial economy for the parties, and comprehensive supervision by a single court. By concentrating this litigation in one forum, judicial economy and parity among the claims of individual Massachusetts Class Members are promoted. Additionally, class treatment in this matter will provide for judicial consistency. Notice of the pendency and any resolution of this action can be provided to the Massachusetts Class by mail, electronic mail, text message, print, broadcast, internet and/or multimedia publication. The identities of members of the Massachusetts Class are readily identifiable from Defendants' records.

85. This type of case is well-suited for class action treatment because: (1) Defendants' practices, policies, and/or procedures were uniform; and (2) the burden is on Defendants to prove they properly compensated their employees including that they properly complied with Massachusetts's tip credit requirements and/or any other exemptions that might apply. Ultimately, a class action is a superior form to resolve the Massachusetts claims detailed herein because of the common nucleus of operative facts centered on the continued failure of Defendants to pay Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class members per applicable Massachusetts laws.

VIII. CAUSES OF ACTION

COUNT I

Violation of the FLSA Failure to Pay the Minimum Wage On Behalf of Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members

86. Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs by reference.

87. This count arises from Defendants' violation of the FLSA due to the failure to pay the minimum wage. See 29 U.S.C. § 206.

88. Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members were paid hourly rates less than the federal minimum wage while working for Defendants.

89. Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members were not exempt from the minimum wage requirements of the FLSA.

90. Defendants' failure to comply with the minimum wage requirements of the FLSA, and, in particular, the tip credit requirements, resulted in Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members being paid less than the federal minimum wage rate.

91. Defendants' failure to pay the minimum wage to Plaintiffs and the FLSA Class Members, in violation of the FLSA, was willful and not based on a good faith belief that their conduct did not violate the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. § 255(a).

COUNT II

Violation of the MFWL Failure to Pay Minimum Wages for Failure to Notify On Behalf of Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class

92. Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs by reference.

93. Defendants violated the MFWL and its implementing regulations, including 455 CMR 27.03(2) by failing to pay Plaintiffs and Massachusetts Class Members the Massachusetts minimum wage for all hours worked.

94. Defendants paid Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members below the state minimum wage rate without complying with the “tip credit” requirement for an employer in Massachusetts, including the notification requirements set forth within the express language of the MFWL and supporting regulations. M.G.L. c 151 § 7.

95. Defendants’ failure to comply with the minimum wage requirements of the MFWL resulted in Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members being paid less than the Massachusetts minimum wage rate.

96. As a result of the violations pled in this Complaint, Defendants are not entitled to claim a tip credit.

97. Defendants willfully failed to comply with the requirements under Massachusetts law and therefore, Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members were not properly paid state minimum wages pursuant to the MFWL.

98. Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members are therefore owed compensatory damages for unpaid minimum wages, treble damages, pre-judgment and post-judgment interest as provided by law, an award of attorneys’ fees and costs, and such other relief as the Court deems fair and equitable.

COUNT III
Violation of the MFWL
Failure to Pay Minimum Wages Due to Improper Deductions/Expenses
On Behalf of Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members

99. Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs by reference.

100. Defendants violated the MFWL and its implementing regulations by making deductions from the wages of Plaintiffs and Massachusetts Class Members for clothing and uniform requirements, which reduced their wages below the Massachusetts minimum wage. These expenses incurred by Plaintiffs and Massachusetts Class Members were primarily for the benefit of Defendants and, therefore, cannot constitute a credit toward Defendants' obligation to pay Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members the Massachusetts minimum wage. Defendants did not reimburse Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members for these purchases made for Defendants' benefit, and indeed would occasionally facilitate such direct purchases by making deductions directly from Plaintiffs' and the Massachusetts Class Members' pay checks. As a result, Plaintiffs' and the Massachusetts Class Members' hourly rates of pay were reduced below the Massachusetts minimum wage during the workweeks in which they were required to purchase items for their uniforms required by Defendants.

101. Defendants' pay policy was unlawful and constituted a willful failure to comply with the requirements of the MFWL.

102. Plaintiffs and the Massachusetts Class Members are therefore owed compensatory damages for unpaid minimum wages, treble damages, pre-judgment and post-judgment interest as provided by law, an award of attorneys' fees and costs, and such other relief as the Court deems fair and equitable.

IX. JURY DEMAND

103. Plaintiffs hereby demands a trial by jury on all issues.

X. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

104. For the reasons stated herein, Plaintiffs requests that judgment be entered in their favor awarding Plaintiffs and the Class Members:

- a. An order authorizing notice to be sent to all similarly situated workers and certifying this matter as a collective action pursuant to 29 U.S.C. § 216(b);
- b. An order certifying this case as a class action pursuant to Rule 23;
- c. Minimum wage compensation unadulterated by the tip credit;
- d. Liquidated damages;
- e. Treble damages;
- f. An order requiring Defendants to correct their pay practices going forward;
- g. Pre-judgment interest and post-judgment interest as provided by law;
- h. Reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses of this action; and
- i. All such other and further relief to which Plaintiffs and the Class Members may be entitled, both in law and in equity.
